

Assistant Professor and Oswald Scholar 2 positions

The Economics Department at the University of Kansas is seeking candidates for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Econometrics and in Microeconomics. These positions include an Oswald Scholar endowed appointment, which provides research support and a discretionary fund.

Econometrics

Candidates must specialize in the field of econometrics. For a complete announcement and to apply online, go to <https://employment.ku.edu>, job posting # 15659BR.

Microeconomics and/or Financial Economics

Candidates must specialize in the field of microeconomics and/or financial economics. For a complete announcement and to apply online, go to <https://employment.ku.edu>, job posting # 15676BR.

Given the specialization of the position, the successful candidate will be expected to: (1) conduct research and publish in econometrics, and (2) develop and teach econometrics courses. On these points, the University seeks candidates who present evidence of the potential for high quality research and highly effective teaching. Moreover, the successful candidate will be expected to direct theses and dissertations; perform advising responsibilities; and serve on Departmental, College, and University committees.

Initial review of applications begins
November 15